EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

SENATOR MITCHELL has almost entirely dropped out of public notice.

DEMOCRATS are opposed to the Republicans and Independents harmonizing.

CONTROLLER PATTISON was mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination for Governor long before the convention assembled, therefore Controller Pattison must be the candidate of the bosses.

THE honors of the late college contests in athletic sports were divided very evenly after all, for Harvard carried off the laurels of the New London Regatta, Columbia those of the Harlem, Pennsylvania those of the Lake George, while Yale secured the championship at base ball.

THE steamboat disaster on the Ohio supplies the full proportion of tragedy to this year's observance of the Fourth, an accompaniment that seems inseparable from our national holiday. The extent of the calamity is scarcely measured even yet,but the number of lives lost is supposed to approach fifty. The collision was clearly the result of carelessness or stupidity on the part of one or both pilots.

THE Democratic state convention gave the following sentence the very first place in their platform:

The Democratic party of Pennsylvania, holding fast to the faith that all power not delegated by the by the constitution is reserved to the states and the people.

The Bradford Star very truly remarks that the above is a platitude of the constitution itself, and what exigency exists to-day requiring its restatement? It is a manifest attempt to perpetuate the odious doctrine that gave birth to secession and treason, and the party that undertakes to reassert it at this day, and in this latitude is not above suspicion.

AFTER the Democratic platform had gone forth it occurred to somebody that it was a little too free trade and so the Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions telegraphed over the State that he words "protection of" had been omitted. It is to be hoped that nobody will be deceived by this subterfuge into believing that the Democrats have given up their free trade doctrines, for the Philadelphia Record, the ablest journal in the party, whose proprietor was a delegate to the convention, says an effort to commit the party to the policy of Protection did not succeed.

THE steady decline of exports, and the equally steady increase of imports, since the year began, are shown by the statistics of the New York Custom House. In January the exports exceeded the imports by eight million dollars; in February the imports exceeded the exports by two millions; in March they exceeded them by six millions; in April by eight and a half millions; and in May by nearly twenty-one millions. This is a vast change within two years. It is probable that the year as a whole will show a very heavy surplus of imports over exports.

Brents on Washington.

"There is a land of pure delight" in the opinion of Delegate Brents, and that land is Washington Territory. For several sessions there has been a bill before Congress for the admission of Washington and the adjacent portion of Idaho as a State, and in furtherance of this project Mr. Brents addressed the House last week at great length. The claims of Washington to Statehood are many in number and various in kind, and its faithful delegate did not fail to enumerate them all.

In the first place, there is its "unrivaled" scenery. "Hugh conical mountain peaks here and there rear their lofty domes far above the verdure-clothed range below into the region of eternal snow, crystal cataracts pour their ceaseless foaming torrents from dizzy heights, limpid streams meander through grassy meadows, ripple through verdant woods or dash in madness through cragged mountain gorges, clear lakes bordered with perennial green, and a thousand other enchanting sights greet the eyes and charm the senses of the lover of nature's romance."

In consideration of its having so much scenery as this, it is possible Congress may be persuaded to overlook its lack of population, especially when it appears that in addition to beautiful landscapes it has also a delightful climate. Mr. Brents has figures to show that it is actually the healthiest place in the world. Its death rate is but 10.05 per 1,000. It is true that none but strong and healthy people go to that distant Territory, and they have hardly been there long enough to start any cemetery to speak of, still its small death rate is a large item in its favor.

The climate of Washington is another feature of this land of pure delight. Such a glorious climate ought to have at least two Representatives in the United States Senate and another in the House, Although in the latitude of Maine and Minnesota, snow and ice are seldom seen except upon the mountain tops, grass grows green the whole year round, and the flowers bloom in midwinter.

The average temperature in winter is 39°. Its lowest last winter was 26°. Its mean summer temperature is 64°, though in July and August the mercury climbs up into the eighties and occasionally passes 90°. Its annual rainfall is between fifty and sixty inches, and in the extreme northwest corner 130 inches has fallen in a single year, though in the eastern part of the Territory sixteen inches is a good year's average. Of its soil and agricultural products, Mr. Brents bears the most flattering testimony. Some of his figures on that head approach the fabulous. Of Washington Territory, the country already knows something. Mr. Brents estimates that its forests are capable of producing 160,000,000,000 feet of lumber. Of its minerals, its coal lands, its fine harbors and great future Congress learned much from the Washington Delegate. On the question of population alone, his testimony is unsatisfactory. All the rest are immigration arguments and could be made more profitable in Castle Garden than in Congress. Ten years ago Washington had just 75,000 inhabitants. With the three Idaho counties added, and the ten years' increase, there is no good reason for believing the present population of the proposed State exceeds 100,000, while the Congressional ratio of representation is 151,000. Mr. Brents' estimate that the Territory will have that amount of population within a year is nothing but wild guess. Washington can afford to wait. It contains the best material for a State of any of the territories, not excepting Dakota. With the completion of the Northern Pacific population will press into the extreme Northwest, and Washington will leap into the full stature of Statehood at a bound. Oregon was not helped by its premature admission nor would Washington be any better off by imposing on its scanty population the burden of a State Government.—Phil'a Press.

Twenty Minutes for Refreshments.

The arrangements made by railroad companies for the safe and speedy conveyance of passengers are for the most part beyond criticism. The tales of the hardships and discomforts of the people of half a century ago, who traveled mostly by stage, sound like a mixture of the ridiculous and the impossible. But with all our boasted improvements in speed, safety and comfort there is one particular in which our fathers surpassed us. That one particular is the obtaining of good meals on the way.

The fathers were not in such a hurry as we are. It was a comparatively small matter if the stage of olden time stopped an hour at the place for dinner. The passengers took it leisurely and in some instance would enjoy a chat with the landlord after paying him for the dinner. Very often the meals were abundant and even sumptuous, considering the circumstances under which they were served. The shaking up the customers had in the stage before reaching the dinner station gave them prodigious appetites. The similar exercise after the meal promoted digestion and made them voracious in prospect of the next meal to be eaten.

But, alas! for the railroad meals of to-day. The glory of those old country inns has departed and there is nothing left but their fragrant memory. The modern railroad dinner is hardly a success. The wholesale process by which provision is made for hundreds of hungry and hurried passengers is the very opposite of the old plan which surrounded by an air of comfort the plate of every patron. Instead of the appetizing jolting of the stage we lounge on cushioned seat of a daintily upholstered car until we reach the meal station. We dread the yelling of the man who tries to drown his voice with an atrocious gong, yet manages above its din to make us hear his "twenty minutes for refreshments." Most passengers dine in eight minutes by the clock. Some eat on for twelve minutes. A few old and experienced travelers sit at the table for fifteen. It often happens that the food provided at these eating stations is respectable in quality, ample in quantity and quite decently cooked. But if people are compelled to adopt the habit of eating in too great a hurry it matters little whether the food is good or bad.

It is hardly probable that for the whole traveling public we shall soon be blessed with such elegant dining cars as those which the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has recently provided. The great, hurrying multitude must be fed somehow, and as most of the wayside feasting-places now are this feeding is at a great disadvantage.—Phil'a Press.

IT looks very much as though the railroads were going to win in their contest with the freight handlers. The immense foreign immigration which is constantly flocking to our shores has enabled the roads to fill the places of the strikers with these new laborers. It is very probable that the new and inexperienced men have cost the road a much greater sum than the advance demanded by the strikers would have amounted to, but they have been saved the humiliation of a defeat by this means. The one consolation which the striking 'longshoremen have so far got out of the strife lies in the fact that many of them have been able to get employment in other departments of labor at better wages than they were ever able to earn at their old employment. It is possible that the rest of them will likewise turn their attention to some other means of obtaining a livelihood and the trouble be thus soon adjusted.

A Work for Women.

The venerable North American thinks that if fifty years ago anybody had predicted that the day would arrive when women would not only be eligible and elected to serve on our common school boards, but that the propriety of their being eligible to such positions would be generally conceded, he would have been scouted as impracticable, if nothing worse. Yet at this time there are but a few northern and western states where women are not eligible, and to some extent actually serving as supervisors, directors or trustees of schools. The necessity for this sharing of responsibility by the sexes existed then as it does now. But woman was not at that time thought to be in the station assigned her by nature, and yet more by custom, when she traveled beyond the household. Time and the normal progress of ideas have changed all that. Woman is now free to select her vocation in life in some states, while in most she finds her sphere of usefulness and activity considerably enlarged. Representing, as she does, better than man the moral forces which mould and conserve society, it ought to follow that her presence should be morally conservative everywhere. Having more to do with the plastic mind than man it ought never to have been doubted that by nature and training she was eminently qualified to educate. Yet the prejudice against women as teachers in the public schools survived to a time within the memory of living persons.

It was a great day for society when the last barrier o that prejudice was leveled. It may exist in some places even now, but its limit is so narrow that it is no longer reckoned as a factor in the work of obstruction. Of late years the proposition to give women administrative positions in the school system has been growing in favor, and in one state, at least, nearly a hundred women are serving as members of school boards. In this state a considerable number have been elected members of the directorship, and in three instances women have been chosen, and served with distinction, as superintendents of public school districts. This is a revolution. As revolutions do not go backward, or even stand still for any considerable time, we may reasonably expect that at no distant day the entire administration of the affairs of our public schools will be in the hands of the mothers and daughters of the land.

THE young time killers fresh from college who bewail the overcrowded condition of the professions should pay attention to the demand that now exists for talent and industry in electric engineering. This is a vocation that is not crowded in the least, and, what with improvements in telegraphy, telephones, electric lights, electric engines, and electric railroads, there is a grand field for research and energy. The possibilities of electricity are believed to be yet but slightly invaded. The invention of the telephone demonstrates how mistaken were those who thought they had caught the full force of the lightning in the clouds when they made it of service for the telegraph. Electric engines are as yet but mere toys. They may become great mechanical forces. The business is bound to be most profitable, and the demand for talent in it is greater than the supply.

WHEN the Republican State Committee of California issued the call for a State Convention it was thought that two months would furnish ample time for the campaign, and the date was accordingly fixed for the 30th of August. Now, however, it seems probable that the canvass will be much harder than expected, and the proposition is being considered of changing the time to some earlier date. The Democrats have already begun their canvass, and the Republicans recognize the necessity of not remaining idle.

Relief at Last.

On Friday, the 30th ult., between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock, Charles J. Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, was hung by the neck until he was dead, dead, dead.

When the news of the successful execution was telegraphed through the country a feeling of relief and satisfaction was felt by well nigh fifty million people.

Perhaps such an execrable wretch as this assassin never before drew the breath of life, and as we review what we could bring ourselves to read of his life we see no redeeming circumstance, no bright spot in his existence which can awaken a spark of sympathy.

Theoretically we are not in favor of capital punishment, but if ever that extreme penalty was meted out fitly it was in the case of this foul assassin.

We have often wondered what kind of people they were whom the Bible speaks of as possessed of the Devil, but having read of Charles J. Guiteau, and contemplated his dark life, we shall never wonder again. There was no evidence of insanity. He knew the enormity of this crime, and he willingly, boldly, unhesitatingly plunged into it, taking his place among the chief of criminals.

It was worth his while to affect insanity and most artfully he played that part, dying with a mock prayer on his lips. He is gone. May the world never see a repetition of such a heinous offender.

NOTWITHSTANDING the sensational reports of damage to the peach crop at various times in the early part of the season, it now appears that the output of the luscious fruit will be greater than any previous year in the history of this country, unless some entirely unlooked-for disaster may yet overtake it. An estimate which has just been completed by Superintendent Mills, of the Delaware railroad, places the crop along the line of that road, in the states of Maryland and Delaware, at over four million baskets, as against three and one half millions in 1875, when the crop was so abundant that many thousand baskets rotted under the trees. This waste, however, is not likely to occur again, no matter how abundant the crop may be, as the numerous establishments for evaporating and canning the fruit, which have been erected within the last few years, will be ample to preserve the surplus peaches and keep the market from being glutted with decaying and unsalable fruit. The lovers of good peaches may fix their mouths to enjoy a great abundance of the delicious fruit this year.

THERE are some indications that a French prince, who is a Bourbon and Legitimist, has trifled with the affections of a young lady who moves in the "first circles" of Philadelphia. The wedding day was fixed and the invitations out, and all the preparations made, but the groom came not. The matter is being investigated. It but remains to be suggested that if the young lady has an able-bodied brother, and it is ascertained that there has been deception, it will be in order to give the French prince a first-class American thrashing. French princes seem to need this sort of discipline very much; not only on account of American ladies, but that they may be inspired with the true flavor of American democracy, which no more excuses a prince from doing these things than it does any other man. History would have been considerably embellished if a good dose of this species of American discipline—which is the only available kind in such cases—had been meted out to Jerome Bonaparte.

Nature's level head: "Madame," he said, sorrowfully, "I shall never be young again." "No," she replied, regarding him with a cynical expression, "when Nature makes a mistake she never repeats the experiment with the same material."

DURING 1881 there were in Alexandria 8,075 deaths, being 38 per 1,000 of population. Among resident foreigners the rate was 43.76 per 1,000. Both rates are very high. The last census showed the whole population to be 212,034, of whom 164,718 were Egyptians and 47,316 foreigners.

FOURTEEN Pennsylvanians have started on a pedestrian tour to Niagara, Montreal, and back through the Hudson River valley. They wear costumes not unlike Oscar Wilde's, carry a tent in sections for camping out, and are certain, the account says, to astonish the natives along the route.

TWO CHILDREN were found starving at Patrick, Va. They had been deserted by their parents in a lonely house, with only a small supply of food, and for a week lived on bark and roots. Their discoverers let them eat all they would, and they gorged themselves so much that death ensued.

IN THE collegiate schools of Germany the study of Greek is to be retarded for one year, for the purpose of giving more room to French and physical science. Great stress is laid on the proper acquisition of the French language. The understanding of it when spoken is to be specially acquired by dictation.

AT a fair of the Congregationalist Church at Palestine, Texas, forty young women gave an exhibition drill with fans, showing how gracefully and bewitchingly these articles can be used. Then the fans were sold by auction, the prices depending on the popularity of its contributor, the whole profit reaching $350.

THE Duke and Duchess of Albany have now selected a pattern of the national fabric of Caledonia which will in future bear their names. The tartan selected by the Duchess is of a highly artistic design, and is blue, black and green in color. The pattern of the Duke's tartan is more simple, the chief colors being scarlet and black.

IT is now concluded that the permanganate of potash, which was thought a short time since to be an excellent antidote for snake bites, does not rest its claims to consideration upon sufficient experimental grounds. It is found it can influence the effect of the poison only before, not after, its complete introduction into the blood.

LORD WATERFORD has determined to return to Carraghmore, his noble Irish home, to which he is deeply attached. His hounds are to be reassembled, and he will hunt again in November. Through all this troublous time the Duke of Leinster and his family have lived steadily on at Carton, and the Duke of Abercorn and his wife have never been so much at home.

THE authorities of New College, Oxford, caused some jackdaws, who had confidingly built upon their chapel walls, to be bricked up, failing other means of dislodging them because the cawing of these birds interfered with their most Christian service. The congregation heard the cries of these unfortunate creatures daily grow less and less till, on the fifth day, death came to their release.

ON ONE of the best street railroads in Chicago the cars are drawn by wire cabels. The plan has been in use only about six months. In that time it has killed eight persons, and injured many others. The difficulty arises from the clumsiness of conductors and passengers, and the company claims that practice will eventually render both expert, but with how much further loss of life is not estimated.

A LONDON paper says: The pathos of the sale which ruthlessly breakes up the historical gallery of the Duke of Hamilton is perhaps best brought out by a miniature portrait of "A Knight of the Garter," attributed to Holbein. "This," says the catalogue, "was presented by Charles I. to the Marquis of Hamilton, and bears the King's brand both as King and Prince."

Poetry.

—While they sat before the fire,
Nothing more did he desire,
Than to get a little nigher,
If he could;
And his heart beat higher and higher,
And her look grew shyer and shyer,
When he sided up close by her,
As he should.

Then he ventured to inquire
If her sister, Jane Mariar,
And her mother and her sire
Were quite well?
And from time to time he'd eye her,
As though he would like to buy her,
And his bashfulness was dire,
For a spell.

Then his husky throat grew dryer
When he told her that the 'Squire
To himself would gladly tie her
If she would;
Might he now go ask her sire?
And he thought he would expire,
When she said, to his desire,
That he could!

—She was rich and of high degree,
A poor and unknown artist he;
"Paint a picture," she said, "of me."

So he painted her as she looked that day,
Without a bang that was astray
This Linn street maiden so very gay—
The picture was a success, they say.

But she looked at him more and more,
From head to foot she gazed him o'er;
And then she said her heart was sore;
He said he never felt so before.

At last she said: "I won't be rash,
But of me you've made a 'mash;'
And if you're tired of boarding house hash
Marry me and get some cash."

—Here lies a man whose earthly race is run
He raised the hammer of a fowling gun
And blew into the muzzle just because
He wished to know if it was loaded—and it was.

Here lies a man who one day found an old bombshell,
But whether it was charged or not he could not tell;
He struck it with an axe to satisfy his mind—
Friends buried here as much of him as they could find.

Here lies a man who wagered that he could drink
A quart of rum at once and never wink;
He won the bet—that fact is very plain;
He drank the rum and never winked again.

Step lightly, stranger, for the man who lies
Beneath this mound ate twenty lemon pies
To win a bet. They laid him here to rest,
For pies are mighty hard things to digest.

Execution of Guiteau.

Charles J. Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, was hanged in the corridor of the jail at Washington, on Friday, June 30, between the hours of 12 and 1. He died quickly and without much of a struggle, of suffocation. The physicians decided, after the execution, that the neck had been broken. The scene at the scaffold was a remarkable one. The assassin is said to have been in great terror, which he attempted to subdue by the power of will. In this attempt he was only partially successful. He read and chanted a prayer composed by himself for the occasion, in which he reiterated his inspiration theory and predicted terrible results to the Nation from his "murder." He denounced the President as a coward and ingrate. He also read and chanted what he called a poem on "Simplicity." At times he was overcome and sobbed and wept. After the cap had been drawn over his face he was heard to shout "Glory" until his utterances were cut short Mrs. Scoville was refused admittance to the jail, but John W. Guiteau saw his brother die. The following telegrams give the details of the tragic occurrence:

WASHINGTON, June 30.—All preparations for the execution and burial of Guiteau were completed last evening. Rev. Hicks and Dr. Coddening pleaded with the President in vain yesterday afternoon for a reprieve of a month. Mrs. Scoville visited her brother yesterday and this morning, and the scene was very affecting. She desired him to communicate with her from the spirit world next month, and signs between them were arranged. Mrs. Scoville bears up well, but decided yesterday not to witness the execution, and was not present when the drop fell. In deference to public opinion she will remain inside the jail building while the execution takes place.

THE PRISONER'S LAST NIGHT.

JAIL, WASHINGTON, June 30, 9.45 a. m.—Guiteau did not rest well last night, having been disturbed by the howlings of a negro prisoner. He ate a good breakfast. The officiating minister, Rev. Hicks, prayed and sang hymns with him for an hour after breakfast, when the assassin took a bath and made himself ready for the execution. He says he is ready and anxious to go, being entirely resigned to his fate. He ordered dinner at 11 o'clock. At 8.30 a. m. the coffin was carried to the scaffold. Flowers, including a cross of roses and carnation pinks, have been ordered by relatives.

THE ASSASSIN'S DINNER.

JAIL, WASHINGTON, 11 a. m.—Guiteau lay down for an hour and rested quietly until 11 a. m., when he took a lunch, eating sparingly, but still in good spirits. At 10 o'clock his brother, John, looked over the scaffold, and talked with the doomed man briefly, cheering him up. Rev. Hicks, the minister appears rather nervous, but is endeavoring to brace up for the execution. A small crowd of curiosity seekers have collected outside the jail, but will not be admitted. One negro offered 75 cents for a reserved seat.

THE DEATH MARCH AND EXECUTION.

JAIL, WASHINGTON, June 30, 12:35.—Warden Crocker read the death warrant in the cell, and at 12.30, the procession, headed by the officials and the clergyman, started to the scaffold, amidst the most profound silence. As the procession moved to the corridor, a death-like pallor spread over the doomed man's face, but with all he seemed firm and defiant. The march to the scaffold was short, and after Guiteau and all others connected in an official way had ascended to the platform, Rev. Hicks read a prayer. Guiteau afterwards read a chapter from the Gospel of St. Matthew in a firm and steady voice. Following these came his prayer and some verses written by himself, Rev. Hicks holding the paper as he read. After this the spirit of the wretch seemed to fail for a moment, and for once he seemed to realize the awfulness of his position and the enormity of his crime. He burst into tears as the emotion manifested itself more, but he as quickly recovered, and assumed his usual bravado. When the last word was said, and all on the scaffold had bid Guiteau goodbye, the black cap was pulled down over his face, and even the dim light in the corridor was shut out from the murderer's sight. The drop fell at 12:44 p. m., the sound, and ugly thud, causing a convulsive shudder to pass through the crowd. The effect of the fall was instantaneous, his neck being broken, and not a struggle being noticeable. In ten minutes life was declared by the jail physician to have left the body of Guiteau, when the audience, inside and out, set up a wild cheer, expressive of their delight at the fitting finish of the great drama. People broke through the outside door amidst the greatest confusion and uproarious excitement, but were, with difficulty, quieted by the guards and civil officers. In due time the body was cut down, and those who were present looked at the remains.

THE AUTOPSY.

The result of the autopsy, so far as they can be learned from the surgeons, may be stated as follows: After surveying the body externally, the surgeons proceeded to lay open the brain cavity and thorax and examine the organs therein contained. The brain was found to weigh forty-nine and one-half ounces, which is a little more than the average, and was well formed, and presented no external evidence of disease or lesion. The neck was not dislocated or fractured, as surgeons supposed, but there was a rupture of the sterno cleida mastoid muscle on both sides, as well as the thyro hyaid membrane. It follows therefore, that death resulted from suffocation and not from dislocation of the spinal vertebræ. A partial examination was made of the abdominal viscera, but it had not been completed at the time the autopsy was suspended. The spleen was found to be considerably enlarged, its weight being fifteen ounces, or more than twice that of a normal spleen. Other abdominal organs, as far as examined, presented no unusual feature. The report of the surgeons will probably not be ready before Wednesday next.

Self-Denial.

Self-sacrifice is at the root of all the blessings of goodness that have survived the wreck of paradise. There never was a heart but had gleams of it. Shining at times in some royal nature, diffusive as the light of day without clouds, there is yet no life so dark and clouded but it sends a golden shaft through some opening rift. To be great hearted for the love we bear to our Master, and in imitation of Him, is the ideal of Christianity, for it is the religion of him whose life and death were self-sacrifice. If we are to follow, we must, like Him, bear a cross. It has been so from the beginning. Call the dead roll of the world's worthies—its prophets, apostles, martyrs and saints, the great teachers of mankind, the architects of our liberties, the heroes of civilization, the ministering angels who have blessed the poor, the sick, the dying, the helpless. Has not the measure of their goodness been that of self-denial? They have suffered that others might suffer less; they have died for the truth that others might live; they have defended human rights by enduring unspeakable wrong. Is not heaven itself to be reached through death? The blessed One entered not into His glory until He had been crucified. The leaders of mankind have had to tread a blackened and scorched path of suffering, and we enter into their labor without their sorrows. White robes of earthly saintship, like those of heaven, are only gained through much tribulation. Everything good costs self denial.—J. D. Geikie.

Rock and rye: "How beautiful these fields of grain are," said she, as she leaned heavily on his shoulder in the carriage. "Yes, very beautiful. Those are fields of rye." "Oh! Is that the way that delicious rock and rye I took for a cold last winter grows?" And they rode right along beneath the trees and by the fields, he in mute admiration at her innocence, and she more than ever pleased with the marvels of nature.

An Important Event.

The great importance of the coming transit of the 6th of December, in the estimate of the men of science, may be seen in the preparations now being made for its observation. Forty expeditions to witness it are already projected, and the number will be largely increased by those of the United States, Italy and Austria, which have not yet been announced. The French government will send eight expeditions to the following points: Four in north latitude and four in south latitude. In the north latitude the stations chosen are the coast of Florida, under the charge of Colonel Perrier; Cuba, under M. d' Abbadie; the coast of Mexico, under M. Bonquet de la Grye; Martinique, an island of the French Antilles, under M. Tisserand. In the south the stations chosen are Santiago, in Chili, under M. Leclerc; Santa Cruz, a river of Patagonia, under M. Fleuriais; Rio Negro, the northern boundary of Patagonia, under M. Perrotin, and Port Desire or Chubutt, also in Patagonia, under M. Hatt. The members of all the expeditions are now preparing for their work at the observatory in Paris, where by means of a model Venus and a model sun they are practising on imaginary transits in hopes of being able to observe with scientific accuracy the passage of the real Venus over the real sun in December. They will start for their destinations in the month of July, and spend the intervening time after their arrival in diligent preparation for the event.

The object of this great expenditure of time, labor, money and brains is the hope that the observers may determine with an accuracy never before attained the earth's distance from the sun. For this is the unit of celestial measurement, and as long as the doubt concerning its accuracy exists, so long there will continue to be doubt in the estimate of celestial distances. But a cloudy day will render months of unremitting labor of no avail. It is estimated that the weather at half the stations will be unfavorable, but a great deal may be learned from the observations made at the other half, according to the law of averages. The four southern stations of the French expedition are in the south temperate zone, and the 6th of December will be near their summer solstice, like the 6th of June at the north. The localities favored with a clear sky at this meridian at the time of the transit will be specially fortunate, for the short winter days are not hopeful in their conditions. A transit of Venus is not a glorious phenomenon like a total solar eclipse. It is simply the passage of a round black ball over the sun's bright face. But it is visible all over our western world, and no human eye that now looks upward to the stars will ever again behold its recurrence. It is the last chance for trying this method of estimating the sun's distance until the advent of the year 2004.

Our telegraph editor got on a symmetrical drunk on the night of the arrivel of Jumbo in this country, which it will be remembered was about the same time the notorious outlaw, Mr. Jesse James, Esq., was shot. The next morning (which was Sunday) the editor and subscribers to the News were horrified at seeing the following appear editorially in the paper: "As we go to press we learn, with mingled feelings of brandy and sugar, that James Jumbo, the notorious Missouri outlaw, was shot dead by his keeper while dusting a picture he had just taken out of his trunk. Jumbo is reported to have shot forty-six men during his reign of terror, and the London Zoological Garden only consented to part with him at the most earnest solicitation of a mob who wanted to hang him over in a schooner where he is now stretched on a bier."—Springfield News.

Wit and Wisdom.

Solomon was the first man who proposed to part the heir in the middle.

Among the glad voices of summer the Baltimore American hears with delight the clam's whoop.

He said her hair was dyed, and when she indignantly exclaimed, "'Tis false!" he said he presumed so.

"Can you flirt a fan?" asked a coquet of her partner. "No," he replied, "I cannot; but I can fan a flirt."

A Chicago scientist believes a man ought to go on all fours. If he is working his way out of a melon patch, perhaps he had.

It was a French woman who exclaimed, holding up a glass of sparkling fresh water: "Ah, if it were only wicked to drink this, how nice it would taste!"

A scientific man says great noises will make milk sour. They will also make the average citizens pretty sour, especially if they come at night when he wants to sleep.

A school boy writes: "The mewl is a larger bird than the guse or turkey. It has two legs to walk with, and two more to kick with; and it wears its wings on the side of its head. It is stubbornly backward about going forward."

A preacher in Tennessee tried to establish a church in which there should be no members who used tobacco or any beverage but water, and his only congregation was an old woman who chewed slippery elm and believed in catnip tea for measles.

When Will it Be.

"Coal costs money."

A bitter, mocking smile—the smile of a demon that has been baffled in his unholy efforts to lure a soul to the uppermost depths of the inferno, played around the Grecian lips of Giroffe Mahaffy as these cruel words fell with incisiveness from her lips. Over the back yard fence came the silvery gleams of the inconstant moon as she moved through the heavens in brilliant splendor and touched the gentle hand, the moss covered wood-shed and the dog, whose blood-curdling bay had fallen in such fearful cadences upon Rupert Hetherington's large, west-side ears, causing them to stand out, perfect in every outline, against the pure mezzo-tints of the recently painted doorsteps.

"You are jesting, sweetheart," murmured Rupert, pulling up his pants so they would not wrinkle at the knee and seating himself beside the girl.

"Am I?" was the reply in cold, Crystal lake accents that seemed to Rupert to pierce his very vest. "If you really think so look out of the window."

Rupert obeyed. The moonlight streamed into the room as he pushed aside the heavy promegranate curtains, falling in mellow splendor on a vase of malachite and alabaster, on statue and bronze. Tazzas of jasper and lapis lazuli stood in recess, and alcove crowded with flowers, curious trifles in gold and silver carving, in amber and mosaic stood on the table and etegere. A curiously wrought sideboard that was new in the days of the Crusaders stood at his left. The fire glowed ruddily in the grate, the pure white flames leaping up the chimney as if in very glee. Amber-tinted sour mash, as Rupert well knew, lay concealed within the recesses of the sideboard. Outside the keen wind of December whistled through the dead branches of the sturdy oaks, telling of the cold and suffering that was to come.

"And do you really mean what you say, sweetheart?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the girl. "There must be some kind of an understanding. I cannot bluff away all the days of my youth."

"Enough," said Rupert. "I will marry you."

"But when?" asked the girl.

Leaning over the beautiful girl he hissed in her ear the fateful words:

"When the Baltimore nine wins a game."

The White House Mail.

Several hundred letters are received every day at the white house and delivered by a special messenger. The correspondence addressed to the President is not opened by him, and it is very rare that he reads one of the thousands of letters addressed to him. All of his letters are first opened by his private secretary. The majority of them are simply referred elsewhere, and never in any form come to the attention of the President. It makes no difference how "personal, private, or confidential" an envelope may be marked, it does not go by the desk of the private secretary unopened. Letters from relatives or intimate friends are sent to the President just as received, but all other letters of a character worthy of being called to his attention are simply "briefed," so that the President can see at a glance what is wanted. Applicants for office who write to the white house are always referred to the departments. It has been the custom of late years to send out to every such applicant a polite formula, saying that the application had been referred to such and such a department. Some of the simple minded correspondents of the executive construe the receipt of this formula as one of the most important steps in the way of securing the desired office. One happy man who recently received one of these formulas wrote in reply that his gratitude over the receipt of the same was "as big as an elefent." He then added that when he should get the place his gratitude would be "as big as two elefents." This formulua of answer is in reality as full of encouragement as the editor's polite "rejected with thanks," sent under seal with a pile of returned manuscript. But no amount of ill-success has any discouraging effect upon the people who write to the President for information, advice, money or office. Out of the 50,000,000 of people in this country there is always a number who flatter themselves that they are not wasteing good paper, pens and ink by writing to the President.

Thick as is an elephant's skin, no living creature suffers more from flies, mosquitoes, leeches and other vermin than he. The pores are very large, and gadflies and mosquitoes, &c., worm themselves into the hollow and suck to repletion. Thus the whole day long they are constantly throwing up dirt, squirting saliva or water, to get rid of these pests, to the great annoyance of their riders. They snore a good deal when asleep, and I have often observed them resting their heads on an outstretched foot when lying down. They are very human-like in many of their ways. They get a piece of wood and use it as a toothpick. They scratch themselves with the tip of their proboscis, and if they cannot reach the place with that they take up a branch and use that. Natives say they plug up bullet holes with clay, but I never knew an instance of it myself.—The London Field.

One of those Awful Children.

One day I sat in a car seat on the langus branch of the Eastern road behind a pale, care-worn lady, who was taking a little boy from Boston to Malden. As the little boy was of a very inquiring mind, and everything seemed to attract his attention, I could not help listening to some of his questions.

"What is that, auntie?" the little boy commenced, pointing to a stack of hay on the marsh.

"Oh, that's hay, dear," answered the careworn lady.

"What is hay, auntie?"

"Why, hay is hay, dear."

"But what is hay made of?"

"Why, hay is made of dirt and water and air."

"Who makes it?"

"God makes it, dear."

"Does he make it in the day time or in the night?"

"In both, dear."

"And Sundays?"

"Yes, all the time,"

"Ain't it wicked to make hay on Sunday, auntie?"

"Oh, I don't know. I'd keep still, Willie, that's a dear. Auntie is tired."

And after remaining quiet a moment, little Willie broke out:

"Where do stars come from, auntie?"

"I don't know; nobody knows."

"Did the moon lay 'em?"

"Yes, I guess so," replied the wicked lady.

"Can the moon lay eggs, too?"

"I suppose so, don't bother me!"

A short silence, when Willie broke out again:

"Benny says oxins is a owl, auntie; is they?"

"Oh, perhaps so!"

"I think a whale could lay eggs—don't you, auntie?"

"Oh, yes; I guess so," said the shameless woman.

"Did you ever see a whale on his nest?"

"Oh, I guess so."

'Where?"

"I mean no. Willie, you must be quiet; I'm getting crazy."

"What makes you crazy, auntie?"

"Oh, dear, you ask so many questions."

"Did you ever see a fly eat sugar?"

"Yes, dear."

"Willie, sit down on the seat and be still or I'll shake you. Now, not another word!"

And the lady pointed her finger sharply at the little boy, as if she was going to stick it through him. If she had been a wicked woman she would have sworn.

There are 8,000,000 little boys like Willie in the United States.

How He Drove 'em Off.

A Wayne county farmer who is much annoyed by tramps came to Detroit a while ago and had half a dozen signs of "Small-pox—Beware!" painted to post upon his house and grounds. Although he had one on either side of his gate they had not been up two hours when a rover passed between them and knocked on the door and asked for food. "Didn't you see those signs on the gate?" demanded the farmer. "Yes'r but I can't read." The next one said he was near-sighted and thought the sign read "for sale."

The third had had small-pox and was willing to nurse the family. The fourth had been vaccinated and was reckless. The fifth had a remedy to sell, and the sixth after getting away with a cold bite, turned to his benefactor and said: "If you want to beat the boys knock down those signs and put up one reading: Help wanted.' It never fails to keep 'em jogging straight along." The farmer followed the advice, and he hasn't had a call since.

They don't speak now. They were engaged to be married, and called each other by their first names—Tom and Fanny—and he was telling her how he had always liked the name of Fanny, and how it sounded like music in his ears. "I like the name so well," he added, as a sort of clincher to the argument, "that when sister Clara asked me to name her pet terrier, I at once named it Fanny, after you, dearest." "I don't think that was very nice," said the fair girl, edging away from him. "How would you like to have a dog named after you?" "Why, that's nothing," said Tom, airily; "half the cats in the country are named after me."

From the French. Two ladies exchanging notes on the method in which they spend the day: "You see, I always get up at ten and ring for my maid, and get dressed." How long does that take?" "Oh, ever so long. You see, the girl takes a full hour to do my hair." "A full hour? Mercy! What do you do while she is fixing it?" "I go out in the garden, and take my morning walk."

Boarding house joke: "I declare!" exclaimed Fogg at the dinner table to-day, "this is the most affectionate pie I ever saw." "Affectionate pie?" cried ever one at the tabe, including the landlady. "Yes," said Fogg; "the upper and lower crusts are so confounded affectionate that they couldn't get anything between them."

—A man named Robert Armstrong, living in Noyes township, Clearfield county, is totally blind. He lost his sight when eleven years of age and is now thirty-nine. His occupation is sawing and spliting wood, which he does more rapidly than many men of perfect sight, and earns from $40 to $50 per month during the summer months. He has the advantage over others in that he can work at night as well as during the day, and is frequently working industriously at 11 o'clock at night, apparently insensible to darkness. His only aid in moving about from place to place is an ordinary walking cane.

—Harry, the infant son of Rev. George Penepacker, died on Wednesday morning, June 28, at Huntingdon, while the family were visiting friends in Mifflin county, Harry being with a relative in the former place. Little Harry was not quite a year old. He was in the enjoyment of his usual health when the family departed from Bellefonte a week ago, anticipating so much pleasure from their trip. But change of air and diet doubtless brought on the ailments which often prove so suddenly fatal to childhood, and turned their rejoicing into mourning. The funeral will take place in Huntingdon to-morrow.

Oh, My Back!

That's a common expression and has a world of meaning. How much suffering is summed up in it.

The singular thing about it is, that pain in the back is occasioned by so many things. May be caused by kidney disease, liver complaint, consumption, cold, rheumatism, dyspepsia, overwork, nervous debility, &c.

Whatever the cause, don't neglect it. Something is wrong and needs prompt attention. No medicine has yet been discovered that will so quickly and surely cure such diseases as Brown's Iron Bitters, and it does this by commencing at the foundation, and making the blood pure and rich.

Logansport, Ind. Dec. 1, 1880.
For a long time I have been a sufferer from stomach and kidney disease. My appetite was very poor and the very small amount I did eat disagreed with me. I was annoyed very much from non-retention of urine. I tried many remedies with no success, until I used Brown's Iron Bitters. Since I used that my stomach does not bother me any. My appetite is simply immense. My kidney trouble is no more, and my general health is such, that I feel like a new man. After the use of Brown's Iron Bitters for one month, I have gained twenty pounds in weight. O. B. Sargent.

A Probable Murder.

ST. LOUIS, July 7.—A special from Alton, Ill., says: About dark last night, at Jersey Landing, a little town on the Mississippi, about thirteen miles from here, Edward O'Hare, a farmer of about 50 years of age, probably murdered John Carroll and attempted to murder his wife. O'Hare has been jealous of Carroll for some time, and meeting him last night in a wild fit of jealous rage began firing at him. Carroll ran, but was struck in the lower part of the back near the spine. The ball penetrated the vitals, besides paralyzing the victim by contact with the cerebro. His recovery is hopeless. After shooting Carroll, O'Hare rushed to his home and attempted to murder his wife. He fired two shots at her, but only inflicted slight flesh wounds, before he was surrounded and overpowered, although he made a desperate resistance, saying that he had one or two men yet to kill. He was taken to Jerseyville, the county seat. He is the father of several children by his present wife, who has always borne a good name. O'Hare is believed to be insane.

Republican Senators.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—A caucus of republican senators was held to-night to determine the party's action in regard to the house bill for a reduction of the internal revenue taxation and the general subject of tariff reductions. The caucus was largely attended and remained in session until 11 o'clock. It was agreed that the bill as amended by the finance committee and reported to the senate yesterday shall receive republican support; that additional amendments shall be prepared for the reduction of about twenty-five per cent in sugar duties, for a reduction of eight dollars per ton from the present duty on Bessemer steel rails and for a reduction of duties on hoop iron, etc., in accordance with the provisions of the McKinley bill now pending in the house. There was a general expression of sentiment in favor of making some small reduction in the rate of internal revenue taxation on tobacco, and the indications were that an amendment to the house tax bill for that purpese will probably command a majority vote in the senate.

The Freight Trouble.

NEW YORK, July 7.—There are constant outbreaks occurring among the striking freight handlers and the new men employed in their places. This morning some of the Italians employed on the Erie docks, while going to their work, were attacked and one of them badly cut with a stone. A man supposed to be one of his assailants was arrested. An old man, for many years an employe of the company, was also assaulted and compelled to take refuge in a ferry house and summon the police before he could reach the pier. Four of the old men resumed work on the New York Central this morning at the old rates. The police say that the coming week will develop the full force of the strike. The condition of affairs at the receiving stations is about the same. Little freight is being received and but little shipped. All the docks are crowded with freight, which is being slowly handled.

Skobeleff's Death.

LONDON, July 9.—General Skobeleff's heart complaint, it is thought, was due to a contusion received during the attack on Plevna. His end was without warning. Only a week or two ago the general rode seventy versts in a little over one night. He spent the greater part of Thursday at the Moscow exhibition and returned to his hotel in excellent spirits. There were at first reports of foul play, but a cursory examination showed that death was caused by rupture of the vessels of the heart.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 9.—Masses will be held in the churches here on the day of General Skobeleff's funeral and the places of amusement will be closed.

Base Ball.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—There was no change in the position of the contestants for the American association championship last week. The Atheletic revived the hope that they were still in the race by defeating the Cincinnati on the 4th, but have since fallen back. Cincinnati now has a strong lead, and as the nine is playing excellent ball and is under good discipline it will require a steady streak of bad playing to deprive them of their position. Louisville took a big stride and is now closely hugging the Atheletic for third place, while the Baltimore has caused general surprise by defeating the Allegheny in two games. There is an exciting struggle for the first position in the league championship between Detroit, Chicago and Providence. Since last week Detroit broke the tie with Providence and now holds the lead, while the Chicago is one ahead of Providence, which has fallen back to third position. Cleveland and Buffalo are also pulling up and are now even with Boston for fourth position. The struggle promises to prove intensely exciting as the season advances.

Preparing for War.

LONDON, July 9.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company dated Alexandria, July 9, 3 p. m., says: "Naval officers have made a reconnoissance and reported that they saw the Egyptians mounting heavy guns on Marabout island on the western side of the entrance to the harbor. Admiral Seymour is consequently preparing a proclamation to be placarded all over the city charging the authorities with a breach of faith, and demanding the surrender of the fortifications within 12 hours and warning the authorities if they fail to comply with this demand fire will be opened upon the forts after the expiration of a further period of 24 hours." Arabbey Pasha was yesterday formally summoned to Constantinople by the Sultan, but refused to obey.

LATER.—From a steamer lying in the inner harbor soldiers are seen digging trenches and carrying shot from one fort to another. The English controller general and the staff in the English consulate will go on board ship to-night.

Teachers' Convention.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 7.—The third and last day of the state teachers' convention was devoted mainly to executive business. Superintendent M. H. Schenck, of Cameron county, read an interesting paper on science in elementary schools. A class of eighteen pupils, averaging 10 years of age, of Pittsburg, gave a remarkable exhibition of rapid work in arithmetic. To-night an address was made by David G. Hill, president of Lewisburg college, on organization of colleges and Dr. J. H. French lectured on teachers' institutes. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Dr. Schaeffer, of Kutztown, president, Professor McClosky, of Lancaster, secretary, and John Morrow, of Allegheny, treasurer. Williamsport was selected as the place for holding the next state convention. The convention then adjourned.

Hostilities.

ALEXANDRIA, July 10.—It is believed that the governor of Alexandria has proposed a compromise, but Admiral Seymour will not accept any terms short of complete surrender of forts. The British ships are cleared for action. The Thetis, Monarch and Invincible are lying in Harbor. The rest of the ships are outside of the foreign Consuls, excepting the British. They have protested against a bombardment. All the foreign men of war with the exception of English are lying outside of the Harbor.

A Minister Killed.

LITTLE ROCK, July 7.—A terrible tragedy occurred on Sunday in the Indian Territory, near McAllister. Rev. W. S. Spaugh, a Methodist minister, who had incurred the enmity of some young Indians whom he had corrected in school, being set upon in a lonely spot and, after a determined struggle, killed. There is no clue to the murderers except as indicated above. Spaugh had relatives in Indiana and Peoria, Ills., and was generally very popular in the territory.

Suit for Services.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—Alexander McEwen has entered suit in this city against the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company for services rendered in floating the deferred bond and consols of that corporation. He demands a specific amount on one account and a commission on money raised through his instrumentality. President Gowen denies that any bargain was made with McEwen. It is thought the claim will reach $50,000.

English Troops.

LONDON, July 7.—Military preparations continued during yesterday afternoon. All the officers of the first batallion of the Scotts Guards were ordered to rejoin their regiment. Five battallions at Aldershot were ordered to embark for Egypt.

A dispatch from Moscow announces the sudden death of General Skobeleff, the famous Russian general, at the Hotel Dussaux there. Skobeleff's death is due to heart disease.

Alexandria.

ALEXANDRIA, July 7.—Work on the fortifications has completely stopped. During a reconnoissance yesterday, 98 guns were observed bearing on the harbor. The officials remaining at the British consulate and the British subjects in the employ of the Egyptian government will embark to-day. All the merchant vessels have gone to the outer harbor, and leaving the inner harbor to the squadron.

A Stabbing Affray.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—Herman Berto, the lad who last night stabbed and killed Wilhelm Kremer, surrendered himself to the police at 7 o'clock this morning. After the crime he ran and he and his brother went to the Noble street wharf and hid in an empty freight car. Neither knew the extent of the injury done to the stepfather and both were afraid to go home for fear of a beating. Upon a final investigation it was thought the deed had been done with a large butcher knife that had been lying on a table where the conflict occurred. Young Berto to-day gave to the police a small pocket-knife with a blade two inches in length which was covered with blood and which he declared was the knife he used. The knife had but a single spot of blood on it which might have got on it during the affray. Berto cried himself to sleep to-day. His wounds which are not dangerous were dressed at the station-house. An official investigation in the case will take place to-morrow.

The Freight Handlers.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 10.—Michael Hart, of this city, and Jesse Wild, a resident of Pittsburg, were arrested to-day, charged by Cook Bros., grocers, with conspiracy. The prisoners belong to the striking freight handlers, the main body of whom recently resolved to boycott the Cook Bros. for furnishing food for the Italian laborers employed by the New York, Lake Erie & Western railroad. Hart and Wild to day stationed themselves in front of the grocery and told a number of persons who were about to enter the store, that they (the strikers) had boycotted the establishment, and asked them to go elsewhere for their groceries. Mr. Cook, on being informed of what was going on, had the two men arrested. They were held for examination.

Killed.

CHICAGO, July 10.—At 8 o'clock this morning Charles N. Stiles, for many years caller on the call board and a well known man in board of trade circles, was shot in the heart and instantly killed by a women of doubtful reputation, who passed under the name of Madaline Stiles. She obtained access to his room by an artifice, when a quarrel ensued which resulted in his death. The woman claims that Stiles, who had for some time been on terms of intimacy with her, made her life unbearable by his dissolute habits and cruelty, and she had made up her mind to leave him, and her announcement of this fact precipitated the quarrel of this morning.

Recovering Bodies.

MINGO JUNCTION, Ohio., July 10.—The body of Mrs. Michael Emerling was recovered this morning at Bridgeport, Ohio, and the body of Lincoln Beardmore was found at Wheeling. The bodies of Stephen Kent and Arthur Hoagland have also been recovered, leaving missing Albert Snow, of Washington, Pa., and Sloane, a 17-year-old boy, of Cleveland. The hull of the Scioto is partly out of water. To-morrow she can be raised. She is about one rod from the shore, and should the river fall she will be left high and dry. The total number of bodies found is fifty-six.

Poison.

POTTSVILLE, July 10.—Two unsuccessful attempts were made in the latter part of last week by a 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Simson Long to poison her mother and brother by placing Paris green in drinking vessels. Prompt medical attention saved the lives of the victims. The family live on a farm near Schuylkill Haven. The child has made a statement that he was prompted to the act by an older sister now living in Philadelphia who left home on account of family troubles.

The Scioto Dead.

PITTSBURGH, July 9.—Twenty more of the bodies of the victims of the Scioto disaster were recovered today. This makes a total of thirty-five bodies recovered thus far. To-day a fleet of twenty five skiffs started from Mingo Junction abreast. They will drag the Ohio river from that point to Wheeling, a distance of twenty miles. The bodies recovered to-day are all those persons living in East Liverpool and Wellsville. The excitement in the vicinity of the sunken steamer is gradually subsiding.

Lost in the Rapids.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 9.—Fredrick Root, of Burlington, Vt.; Herbert M. Kinney, of Ellenburg, N. Y.; Jane Laucks, of Aultsville, Ont., and Agnes Fetterley, of Morrisburg, Ont., went out rowing on the St. Lawrance river, and as no trace of the party can be found it is feared that all have went down the rapids and been drowned.

Arctic Expedition.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 9.—The steamship Neptune, hired by the government as a supply ship to the Greely Arctic exploration party, left yesterday for Discovered Harbor, in Lady Franklin Bay. She is well equipped with the necessary stores and has all the conditions requisite to secure a successful result.

A Liquor Raid.

GREENFIELD, Mass., July 5.—A liquor raid was made to-night on hotels and retail liquor stores. A large quantity of liquor was seized. Quite an excitement prevails and the hotel proprietors threaten to close their houses if not allowed to sell.

Shocking Affair.

NEW YORK, July 10.—A special from Shrevesport, La., says: "This morning the remains of a colored boy named Mack Taylor were found tied to a tree in the woods, in Webster parish. Several days ago Taylor attacked a boy named McDonald and beat him severely and fled. McDonald's father, with two other men, pursued and captured him and brought him back to Webster parish. There they tied him to a tree and shot him to death. When the remains were found nearly all the flesh had been picked from the bones. The assassins will be arrested."

Is She Lost?

LONDON, July 9.—It is feared at Amsterdam that the Dutch iron-clad Adder has been lost, as the body of her pilot has been washed ashore at Ymuiden. The Adder is a second class vessel, with 400 horse power engines and a displacement of 1,050 tons. She carries two twelve-ton guns.

Want to Return Home.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7.—The secretary of the navy to night received the following dispatch from Engineer Melville, dated at Irkutsk:

"Arrived at Irkutsk with Nindman, Noras and Relisks. Missed Harver on the Lend. Sent Barlett to join him Want permission to return home."

Two men Killed

MACON, Ga., July 5.—Just after the close of the political convention, held yesterday in Jeffersonville, Twiggs county, John M. Benford shot and killed Jeff Wood and John Johnson in a drunken row. Benford was slightly wounded and escaped.

Fire in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 5.—Messrs. Johnson & Arneson's furniture factory was burned to-day. Loss, $50,300; insurance, $12,000. Several adjoining cottages were also burned involving a loss of about $4,000.

A Forger's Bail Reduced.

UTICA, N. Y., July 6.—Judge Coxe to-day granted an order reducing the bail in the case of R. Porter Lee, the Buffalo bank defaulter, from $100,000 to 25,000.

Destroyed.

CAIRO, Ill., July 5.—Hinkle & Moore's tobacco and pork warehouse was destroyed by fire to-day. Loss, $25,000; insurance, $15,000.

Sudden Death of Mr. John Syler.

The subject of this notice died at his home at Nittany Valley Junction, on Thursday, June 29, of paralysis. He was about 74 years of age and was, we believe, the father of eighteen children, being married twice and having nine children borne to each wife. He had fifty-three grandchildren. His second wife is still living. A sermon commemorative of his honored life and deeds was preached in the Union Church, near his home, on Sunday morning, the 2nd inst., and on the same day the funeral services were held in the Bethel church, the interment being made in the church yard, Rev. C. W. Sechrist officiating.

—There is at present in Berlin a nobleman who owns eighty-three pairs of trousers, all of one pattern and he purchased them all to prevent any other person having a pair of the same kind. It is said that he is better supplied with trousers than any other man of fashion in the world. But it is equally true that the grocery store of Sechler & Co. is better supplied with all kinds of groceries than any other store in this region. The purchaser may call for whatever he desires in the line of heavy or light groceries and his wants will be supplied. The store has become a household word in our midst, and the most careful and conscientious buyers patronize it. It is quite foolish for a man to have eighty-three pairs of trousers of the same pattern, but it is good common sense for a grocery store to be operated like that of Sechler's, and the amount of patronage it receives shows that other people agree with us.

The loss comes at an unfortunate time, as the glass works recently suspended operations until the first of September and the purse contained money which he expected to use during his enforced idleness. He is boarding at the Bush House and is willing to give fifty dollars to the finder upon the return of the purse and contents.

EMPLOYMENT FOR LADIES.—The Queen City Suspender Company, of Cincinnati, are now manufacturing and introducing their new Stocking Supporters for Ladies and Children, and their unequaled Skirt Suspenders for ladies. None should be without them; our leading physicians recommend them, and are loud in their praise. These goods are manufactured by ladies who have made the wants of ladies and children a study, and they ask us to refer them to some reliable and energetic lady to introduce them in this county, and we certainly think that an earnest solicitation in every household would meet with a ready response, and that a determined woman could make a handsome salary and have the exclusive agency for this county. We advise some lady who is in need of employment to send to the company her name and address, and mention this paper. Address Queen City Suspender Company, 179 Main st., Cincinnati, O. 27-5t

—Williamsport is a place where people seem to understand the art of enjoyment. Last week the young men of that city started on a pedestrian tour to Canada, and now we are informed that on Friday two of the young ladies walked all the way from Williamsport to Trout Run, thereby earning a trip to the sea shore, which the uncle of one of the damsels had promised them if they successfuly accomplished the feat.

—There were seven properly accredited delegates from Philadelphia in the Democratic State Convention, who refused to support Pattison when his name was put in nomination for Governor. Forty or fifty persons from Bellefonte were present at the Republican State Convention, but there was not one dissenting voice among them to the nomination of our gallant townsman. But this is only a straw which shows the popularity of the respective candidates at their homes.

—Mr. Frank H. Mayer was married on Sunday to Miss Elizabeth Helmbs. The ceremony took place in the Reformed parsonage, Rev. J. F. DeLong officiating. Mr. Mayer was formerly connected with Mr. J. H. Sands' bakery and is now, we believe, in the same business in the enterprising borough of Philipsburg. His fair bride was also connected with the bakery in the capacity of saleslady. We wish them many years of happiness.

—Excursion tickets to the ninth annual tri-State picnic and exhibition of Patrons of Husbandry of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia, to be held in Williams' Grove on the 21st of August, will be sold at very low rates at all points on the Pennsylvania, Philadelphia and Reading and Cumberland valley railroads. To procure tickets on the above roads, and for information, write, enclosing stamp, to R. H. Thomas, Mechanicsburg —Good Health, a magazine devoted to the dissemination of information of hygienic importance, says that white flannel is much better than red flannel for wearing apparel. It contains no artificial coloring matter, is more durable and can be kept more cleanly. The popular notion that red flannel is a specific for rheumatism or any other disease is a mistake.

—J. A. Fiedler, Esq., city editor of the Olean (N. Y.) Times, called at our office on Friday afternoon. He is a native of this county and spent his boyhood days in Madisonburg, but like all Centre countians, has only to step out into the world to make his influence felt in the world's affairs. He is now on a vacation of two weeks, during which he will visit Madisonburg and review the scenes and incidents of bygone days.

—It is said that the car works have realized thousands of dollars to their owner since beginning operations a few months ago, and that the reason for ceasing work is because the proprietor does not want to be burdened with additional business cares. It seems strange, then, that the profitable business cannot find a purchaser.

—Mr. James Irvin and family are visiting Mr. I's former home in Clearfield. As they have not visited that place for several years they expect to realize much pleasure from the trip.

De Long's Diary.

The Terrible Story of the Struggle for Life Which It Tells.

WASHINGTON, June, 26.

The Navy Department is in receipt of advices from Engineer Melville, dated Lena Delta, March 26, in which he gives a detailed account of his operations up to that date and full particulars of the finding of the remains of De Long and his comrades. This story has already been told. But Engineer Melville also forwards a copy of a note-book found by De Long's body, which tells the story of the struggle for life which the men had. The notes were begun on October 1, 1881, and were continued to October 30, Towards the last the notes were very brief. The first entry tells of the amputation of Erickson's toes. On the 3d of October nothing was left to eat but their dog, which was killed and dressed and a stew made of such parts as could not be cured. All partook of the stew except De Long and the doctor. They sat around a fire all that night, but had it not been for Alexy's sealskin, De Long writes that he thinks he should have died from the cold.

The next morning Erickson was unconscious and had to be lashed to a sled. At o'clock the party reached a hut large enough to hold them all, and for the first time since Saturday they managed to get warm. Erickson was very low and prayers were read for him before the others sought rest. At ten all except Alexy lay down to sleep. Alexy went off to hunt, and at noon returned wet, having fallen into the river. At six they roused up and had a pound of dog meat for each person and a cup of tea, the day's allowance, but they were so grateful that they were not exposed to the terrible gale which was raging at the time that they did not mind short rations. The next day, Wednesday, tea and dog meat were eaten and on Thursday Alexy was sent out to hunt and Erickson died while he was gone. Alexy returned empty-handed. The notes at this point say: "What, in God's name is going to become of us? Fourteen pounds of dog meat left and twenty-five miles to a possible settlement."

Under date of October 6 the notes say: "117th day —Breakfast consisted of the last half-pound of dogmeat and tea. The last grain of tea was put in the kettle, and we are now about to undertake a journey of twenty-five miles with some old tea leaves and two quarts of alcohol. However, I trust in God, and I believe that He who has fed us thus far will not suffer us to die of want now." They got under way at 8. 30 A.M. and proceeded until 11.20, by which time they had made about three miles and were all pretty well done up. They had half an ounce of alcohol in a pot of tea for dinner. Went ahead and soon struck what seemed to be the main river again. Here four of the party broke through the ice in trying to cross, and fearing frost-bite a fire was built. Alexy shot one ptarmigan and there was soup for supper. On Sunday, the 9th, Noros and Ninderman were sent ahead. The party crossed a creek, broke through the ice and got wet. Dinner consisted of half an ounce of alcohol, but three ptarmigans afforded soup for supper. They fouud a canoe and partial shelter for the night.

The entry for Monday, October 10, is thus: "Last half-ounce alcohol at 5 39. At 6.30 sent Alexy off to look for ptarmigan. Yesterday morning ate my deer skin foot-tips. Under way at 8. In crossing creek three got wet. Built fire and dried out. Ahead again till 11. Built a fire and made a drink out of the tea leaves and from the alcohol bottle. On again at noon. Very hard going. Ptarmigan tracks plentiful. At 3 halted. Used up. Crawled into a hole in the bank. Alxey in quest of game. Nothing for supper except a spoonful of glycerine. All hands weak and feeble, but cheerful. God help us."

"Tuesday, 11—S. W. gale, with snow. Unable to move. No game. One spoouful of glycerine and hot water for food. No more wood in our vicinity."

"Wednesday, 12th.—Breakfast, last spoonful of glycerine and hot water. For dinner a couple of handsful of Arctic willow in a pot of water and drank the infusion. Everybody getting weaker and weaker. Hardly able to get firewood. S. W. gale, with snow."

"Thursday, 13th.—Willow tea. No news from Ninderman. We are in the hands of God, and unless He relents we are lost. We cannot move against the wind, and staying here means starvation. Afternoon, went ahead for a mile. After crossing another river, or the bend of the big river, missed Lee; went down in a hole in the bank and camped. Sent back for Lee. He had lain down and was waiting to die. All united in saying Lord's Prayer and Cread. After supper strong gale of wind; horrible night."

Breakfast on Friday consisted of willow tea and dinner of willow tea and one-half spoonful of sweet oil. On Saturday breakfast consisted of willow tea and two old boots. The next day Alexy broke down, and on Monday, the 17th, died. On the 19th the doctor went ahead to find a new camp, and the final entries read:

Friday—Kaack was found dead about midnight between the doctor and myself. Lee died about noon. Read prayers for sick when we found he was going.

Saturday—Too weak to carry the bodies of Lee and Kaack out of the ice. The doctor, Collins and myself carried them around the corner out of sight. Then my eyes closed up.

Sunday—Everybody pretty weak. Slept or rested to-day and then managed to get enough wood in before dark. Read part of Divine service. Suffering in our feet. No foot-gear.

Friday—Tverson died during early morning.

Saturday, 29th—Dressler died during the night.

Sunday, October 30, 140th day—Boyd and Gartz died during the night. Mr. Collins dying.

This is the end of Lieutenant De Long's diary. De Long, Surgeon Ambler and Ah Sam, the cook, died soon after the last note was written.

To the sick Peruna is the greatest blessing.

—The Fourth of July was one of the most disagreeable days of the season in Bellefonte, the rain descending in torrents all day long, and therefore it is somewhat curious to read that no further off than the city of Philadelphia a large part of the glorious day was delightfully pleasant. A stormy holiday is never welcome and it results in a great disappointment to all who desire to devote the time to outdoor recreation. It is only possible to sit in the house and think that Sechler's grocery store is selling a surprisingly large amount of excellent groceries, and that it is altogether a model establishment of its kind. Its proprietor is a gentleman of thorough training, and has for years given the wants of the people of this section his attention, and if he can't sell groceries to suit the million the feat is impossible.

—A second reading of the article in the Philadelphia Press, of Wednesday, which alludes to the presence of General Beaver in that city on the Fourth, shows that the entire description of the ceremonies is fanciful and extravagant in the extreme. The regular Republican candidate for Governor was not in the city at all, but was in another part of the State.

—The late Mahlon Fisher, of Williamsport, at his death, bequeathed a sum of $33,000, the interest of which is used semi-annually to supply the wants of widows. In consideration of this, services commemorative of him were held over his grave on Sunday afternoon.

—During the month of July all newspapers must pass through the post-office that the postmaster may be able to learn the exact weight of the the mail packages. It has been customary in some cases, for convenience, to put them on the train at the stations.

Will not Return to Work.

The striking miners at Philipsburg held a meeting on Monday, and decided not to return to work as the differences between them and their employers cannot be satisfactorily settled.

—Sunday evening service in the Episcopal church now begins at 7 o'clock.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Who seeks and will not take, when once 'tis offered, shall not find it more.—Shakespear.

In no department of traffic is this practical wisdom of the great English tragedian exemplified with more fidelity than that over which a genuine sacrifice in prices of Clothing, Booots and Shoes so despotically presides.

The great Boston Clothing House, just opened in Reynolds' block, opposite the Brockerhoff House, Allegheny street, Bellefonte, Pa., are offering their entire immense stock of clothing, Boots and Shoes at slaughtering prices to clear out their stock to make room for their fall goods which are already being manufactured for this branch, and he who will not trade now shall never have another such an opportunity. Remember the goods must and shall be closed out at any price without delay at the Boston Clothing, Boot and Shoe House, just opened in Reynolds' block, opposite the Brockerhoff House, Allegheny Street, Bellefonte, Pa. 27-4t

THE LATEST NEWS.

River Disaster.

STEUBENVILLE, July 5.—The Scioto excursion boat from Wellsville, with 300 persons from that place and 100 from East Liverpool, collided with the Loomis, an excursion boat, near Mingo, below Steubenville. There are over fifty lives undoubtedly lost. There are more than this number missing, and all those who had chances for escape are heard from. The work of searching for bodies is being prosecuted vigorously, and those recovered are Daniel Thomas, son of Captain Thomas, David Fogo, Stewart, Piper, Sallie Kidny and Joe Conner, of Wellsville; Harry Beardmore Belle Brandon, Mrs. Millie Shields, E. R. Burke and John Beard, of East Liverpool; Ed. Duffy and Ed. Smith, of Steubenville; C. E. Sprague, of Hammondsville. Over fifty are missing. Hundreds of persons from Wellsville and East Liverpool went down to the scene of the disaster today. When the boat is raised it is believed a number of bodies will be discovered. The ill-fated party seemed to be equally divided as to sex, but so far the bodies of three ladies only have been found.

Remains of Guiteau.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Evening Star says: On Monday night a wagon drove into the jail-yard, and when it reappeared shortly afterward it was driven to the city and into an alley through which the army medical museum is reached. This wagon without doubt contained Guiteau's body. None of the physicians or jail officers would say anything about the whereabouts of the body or what would be done with it. Warden Crocker, when asked about it, seemed displeased that anything should have transpired concerning it, and said: "If the body is not at the medical museum it will be there in a day or two." The report prepared by the physicians of the autopsy on the body of Guiteau has been sent to Philadelphia for publication in a medical journal of that city, and will be made public from there.

State Teachers' Association

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 5.—The twenty-eighth annual convention of the State Teachers association met here to-day with five hundred teachers enrolled. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Judge Pershing and B. F. Patterson, superintendent of public schools. The afternoon exercises were devoted to the reading of the inaugural address by the president, J. P. Andrews, of Pittsburgh, and a recitation by Robert Hall entitled, "The World We Live In." A paper was read to night entitled, "Manners for Little Folks," followed by a lecture by Dr. E. G. Jeffers, of New Wilmington, on "Education and Culture." The convention will be in session until Friday night.

The Freight Handlers' Strike.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The report that the demand of the freight handlers would be complied with this morning proved incorrect. A number of Germans have been added to the new force recently employed by the various railroad companies, and freight is being handled more rapidly; the business, however, is still behind.

Official Figures.

PORTLAND, July 5.—The official canvass of the late election shows the following majorities for the republican candidates: For congress George, 3,365; for governor, Moody, 1,488; for supreme judge, Lord, 1,401; for secretary of state, Earhart, 2,516; for treasurer, Hirsch, 2,652; superintendent of instruction, McElroy, 3,143; state printer, Byers, 2,428.

A Fugitive.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—Moses Kahn, formerly a jeweler in this city, and who was adroitly spirited away from Cincinnati by detectives on Monday last, arrived in this city to-day in charge of a detective. An officer with a bench warrant for Kahn was in waiting at the depot, and the prisoner was taken to the county prison. Kahn has been a fugitive from justice since April last.

Death of D. I. K. Rine.

DETROIT, July 5.—Rev. D. I. K. Rine, somewhat of a temperance lecturer and Methodist minister, well known in Pennsylvania and Ontario, died at the insane asylum, this county, on the 3d. He was a great scoundrel, but succeeded in making many dupes during his career of a few years by means of unlimited gab and cheek.

A Louisiana Tragedy.

ALGIERS, La., July 5.—Louis Berger, a young man, while walking with two ladies was suddenly met and shot dead by Ruth Ford, aged 19, who declares that Berger had betrayed her under promise of marriage. The tragedy caused great excitement.

Unknown Man Killed.

BALTIMORE, July 5.—An unknown man, 28 years of age, was killed at the Relay house, Baltimore and Ohio railroad, while endeavoring to board a train there this evening.

The Toy Pistol.

BUFFALO, N. Y, July 5.—Two more cases of lockjaw are reported to-night, the effect of the use of toy pistols. Both will probably prove fatal.

The Guiteau Autopsy.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 6.—The report of Dr. Lamb, of the post mortem examination upon the body of Guiteau will be made public tomorrow in the Medical News, of this city. The examination was made an hour and a-half after death. After describing the general appearance of the body, including the statements that the neck was not fracured or dislocated, and that there was found a small white scar confined to the scalp midway between the top of the left ear and the medium line of the head, the report describes the condition of the skull and brain minutely. The right parietal bone was slightly flattened but in thickness the skull presented nothing remarkable. The description of the brain is accompanied by an engraving, a copy of a photograph taken four hours after death. The brain was firm and weighed 49½ ounces. It was slightly flattened in the region corresponding to the flattening of the parietal bone. On a section of the cerebrum there was an appearance as of a slight thinning of the gray cortex.

The description of the fissures is very minute. The heart weighed 10¾ ounces, and the spleen, which was lobulated and enlarged, 18 ounces. Commenting upon the report the Medical News says editorially that those who expected to demonstrate the assassin's criminal irresponsibility by the changes in his brain will have a rather difficult task. If they expected to find deviations from the normal type of brain structure, they are certainly disappointed. The deviations mentioned in the report have absolutely no signification from the point of view of moral derangement. It may be affirmed of Guiteau's brain that it presented as little evidence of pathalogical change as the brain of any one of his age dying of some other than cerebral spinal disease. What may be disclosed on the microscopic examination, which is yet to be made, remains to be seen.

The Scioto Disaster.

MINGO JUNCTION, Ohio., July 6.—The bodies of Charles Swearinger, of Kensington, Ohio; Daniel Thomas, the captain's son; E. P. Smith and a man named Dunhamer, or Durhamer, of Wellsville, Ohio, were found to-day. About forty men who came down with skiffs and a cannon from East Liverpool are doing good work. Several bodies are lodged in the engine room and under the bow, but want of necessary apparatus prevents their being reached. Boats and grappling tools, diving bells, etc., are on the way from Pittsburg. When the wreck is raised it is expected that from thirty to fifty bodies will be found. The missing are accumulating, and with what have been found the dead will number sixty five or seventy-five. The dead so far have been recognized and moved to their late home. The body of Stewart Piper, reported found yesterday, has not yet been found.

The Strike.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 6.—It is reported here that Watson & Co., of Pomeroy, have signed the six dollars and twenty-five cents scale, which is twenty-five cents over the Pittsburg scale. Secretary Weeks, of the Iron association, is out of town and nothing can be learned from that source. Secretary Martin, of the Amalgamated association, has no doubt it is true. He draws therefrom a good augury for the success of the strike in Pittsburg. The scale was signed at Leechburg for the second time yesterday. It was signed before, but some hitch occurred. The Knights of Labor held a secret meeting today. It was afterward stated that they decided to assist the striking miners pecuniarily.

Perjury Suit Ended.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 6.—A hearing was this afternoon given Senator Roberts, charged with perjury in taking the oath as a member of the legislature. Both prosecutor and defendant were present. Only two witnesses testified, K. M. Kange and Charles Connell. Their evidence was more of a vindication than prosecution, and when they had finished the case was dismissed for want of proper evidence—Boyle, the prosecutor, refusing to make affidavit that he could secure additional testimony.

Accidents.

DES MOINES, July 6.—L. P. Sherman, brother of General and Senator Sherman, fell from the roof of his house yesterday and was dangerously, perhaps fatally, injured.

Herman Blackman, of Bloomfield, died last night from wounds inflicted by another farmer named Crane on Tuesday night during a drunken quarrel. Blackman's father is said to have been a duke of the grand dukedom of Saxony. Crane is under arrest. Both families are eminently respectable.

Horse Thieves Arrested.

GLEN FALLS, N. Y., July 6.—James and Ernest O'Grady, who belong to a gang of horse thieves, were arrested in a cave three miles from this city to day, after a desperate encounter, the thieves firing several shots at the officers and other members. The gang are being pursued and there is considerable excitement.

Death of a Centenarian.

GREENFIELD, N. H., July 5.—Miss Elizabeth Treadwell Weston, aged 104 died to-day.

An exchange heads a lot of sea side paragraphs "Summer Breezes." This is a little too previous. Some are breezes and some are not.

Liver diseases, headache, and constipation, caused by bad digestion, quickly cured by Brown's Iron Bitters.

Three Weddings.

Prominent among the many delightful weddings which have made the present season notable by their occurrence, was that of Clinton A. Lindsay and Miss Lizzie Campbell at the residence of the bride's father on Wednesday, the 28th of June. The 'witching shades of evening were stealing down from the western hills. Within the dwelling a brilliant collection of flowers gave beauty to the scene, and rendered the air fragrant with their perfume. Soft lights threw their seductive glamour over all. At the appointed time the bride and groom entered, taking their position under a superb floral horse shoe. Rev. J. A. Woodcock, paster of the Milesburg M. E. church, met them and uttered the solemn words. Then followed congratulations and pleasant conversation, a sumptuous feast and a departure to the depot, where they met the east bound train which conveyed them on an extended wedding tour to Boston and other cities.

The groom is a practical watchmaker and is now engaged in a prosperous business at Houtzdale, where their future home will probably be. All who enjoy the acquaintance of the bride will unite in best wishes for her happiness, but will think of her departure with regret, as she was a general favorite. For several years she has been a teacher in the public schools of this place. By the way, she is, we believe, the fifth teacher of these schools, who has met the same pleasant fate within the past two years. But she is so well known that more comments are unnecessary. We extend to Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay our heartiest congratulations.

The residence of Mr. Samuel Williams, on Willow Bank street, was the scene of a pleasant wedding on Thursday, June 29, at 10 o'clock a. m. The contracting parties were Mr. Henry Rider, of this place, and Miss Alice Florey, housekeeper for Mr. Williams. Rev. J. F. DeLong performed the ceremony in his best style. Miss Jamison, of this place acted as bridesmaid. The feast of cakes and other good things prepared for this occasion was very munificent, and we can personally attest that it was excellent in quality. The happy bride and groom departed in a carriage for Pine Grove, where a reception was tendered them at the residence of Mr. Hoy in the evening. They have our best wishes.

The residence of Mrs. Elizabeth Ebbs, near Loveville, was the scene of a very pleasant occasion on Tuesday, June 27. A select company assembled to witness the marriage of Miss Mary E. Ebbs to Rev. G. W. Baker, now in charge of McConnellstown circuit in Huntingdon county. Rev. Richard Hinkle, Presiding Elder of Juniata district, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. J. S. Beyer, pastor of Half Moon circuit. The marriage took place at one o'clock p. m. and was followed by an elegant dinner.

The wedding presents were appropriate and valuable, including silver, china, and glassware, table linen, books, &c.

Mr. Baker is a promising young minister, and is to be congratulated upon winning a lady so well fitted by nature, culture and grace, to fill the responsible station of a minister's wife.

This is the second marriage of Half Moon ladies to ministers from abroad during the month of June. If the apathetic young men of the valley are going to let these preachers carry off all the pretty girls, it is their own affair, but they had better wake up before their hopes are all withered, for there was another handsome young dominie from Huntingdon county present at this wedding who was probably "casting sheep's eyes" around.

Death Record.

Samuel Saxon, an employe of Scotia Mines, met his death by an accident a few days ago. While engaged at work he fell into the washers and met with injuries which caused his death in less than two hours. He was an excellent man and his death is much lamented. His age was about 35 years. He left a family.

Mrs. Mary Heverly, an aged resident of Boiling Springs, died at her home at that place on Monday morning at 4 o'clock. She was the mother of three sons, Henry, Charles and James Heverly, who have grown to manhood, and a daughter, who is now Mrs. Wm. Hunter. She was buried in Union cemetery, this place, on Tuesday at 2 o'clock p. m.

Mrs. Bella Cole, wife of Robert Cole, foreman of the Phœnix Planing Mill, died on Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock. She was the mother of five children and was 31 years of age. The funeral took place last Friday.

A BRILLIANT NUPTIAL EVENT.

Splendid Wedding Ceremonies at Mifflinburg in which Bellefonters are Interested.

The following extracts from the Mifflinburg Telegraph of the 5th inst., will prove of interest to our readers who are acquainted with the fair lady who was one of the chief actors in the pleasant event which they narrate:

On last Thursday evening, in the Buffalo Presbyterian Church, Miss Emma Wilson Kemble, one of Mifflinburg's fairest daughters, was led to the altar by Mr. Jno. Edward Colt of Northumberland. The occasion was a very pleasant one in all its surroundings and is entitled to the distinction of being the first wedding solemnized in the new church.

No social event in a long while has created such a stir in our midst or has been attended by festivities as becoming. Every train of Wednesday and Thursday brought delegations of friends from neighboring towns, and after the arrival of the "special" on Thursday evening, with its large addition to the number already here, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Bellefonte, Sunbury, Northumberland, Milton and Lewisburg were well represented, our sister commonwealth of Delaware sending her quota from Middletown.

The church was opened at 8 p. m. The relatives and friends of the bride and groom began to assemble and by half past eight, the time appointed for the ceremony, the modest audience room was filled with beauty and chivalry from home and abroad. Decorations of flowers and evergreen, the work of fair hands, lent their added charm to the scene soon to be enacted.

Promptly the bridal party appeared, and, while Miss Kate L. Shriner played the wedding march, advanced by the right aisle to the front, forming a semi-circle. Rev. Dr. Isaac Grier then tied the knot and the curtain fell on the first act. Immediately after, the newly-wedded, with their aids in glad procession, left the church and were driven to the Kemble mansion, where the reception was held. To describe the appearance of the bride and her maids needs better ink than flows from the pen that traces these lines; suffice it to say, the bride was charming in a dress of white brocaded satin and moire, with ruffles of Oriental lace and pearl-trimming, wearing the accustomed veil and orange blossoms. Her attendants were attired in cream nun's veiling, moire satin and Spanish lace.

The bridesmaids were Misses Georgie A. Kemble, sister of the bride, Fanny H. Howell, of Middletown, Del.; Lydia F. Paulson, of Pittsburgh, and Rachie Wilson, of Middletown, Del.; the respective groomsmen being S. E. Slaymaker, of Sunbury; Horace E. Kapp and G. A. VanAllen, of Northumberland, and R. H. Kemble, brother of the bride. Samuel Heckert, of Shamokin, Jas. Colt, brother of the groom, W. M. Boal and Horace P. Grover were ushers.

At the reception, which was held from 9 to 11, about 150 persons were present, filling the house with a joyous company, and, congratulations being over, refreshments were served at 10 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Colt went to Cape May, where they will spend a few weeks.

Among the guests from this place who were present were Dr. and Mrs. Thos. R. Hayes.

The presents received on the occasion in number and elegance were simply wonderful. The grand total reached 122, among them being a handsomely furnished house in the borough of Northumberland, from the groom's father. There was also a large quantity of solid silverware, in cases, steel engravings, paintings, Roger's statuary, etc., etc.

If this auspicious beginning of their married life is a fair example of what the remainder of it will be (which we hope is the case), they will be, indeed, among the most blessed of earth's inhabitants.

Spring Mills Gossip.

SPRING MILLS, June 28, 1882.

Prof. Reiter has just closed a successful term of school. His next term will begin July 24.

J. H. Fisher, who has been a student of the Spring Mills Academy for a number of terms, has returned to his home in Rock Grove, Ill. Hope that he may have been benefited by his stay here, and may have carried with him some pleasant remembrances.

The special train, which was alluded to some time ago, will not come as the cars cannot be obtained.

"Once upon a time" not very long ago, a Centre Hall gentleman was here visiting and he, with others, went in swimming, but was so unfortunate as to lose his false teeth after plunging into the water. Now, should these be washed ashore and be found by any one it might be rumored abroad that a man was killed; but let this serve as an explanation to the mystery. Moral: Men should be careful to have their artificial teeth secure when they go in swimming.

SPRING.

—According to the Philadelphia Record, our distinguished townsman, ex-Governor A. G. Curtin, does not consider the Democratic nomination for Governor a wise one. He thinks it is never advisable to nominate city clerks, and the ambitious controller will find a State contest very different from a city fight.

In Memoriam.

WILSON.—Clarence L. Wilson, beloved and only child of George G. and Isola D. Wilson, at his parents' home in Buffalo Run, Centre county, June 20, 1882, aged 4 years, 10 months and 24 days.

This dear little boy, although so young, gave more than ordinary promise of a bright future—tender, thoughtful and grave beyond his years, sweet and gentle in all his actions, the pride of his parents' hearts. Only a few short months ago his one dear playmate, Myrtle Lever, was called away to join the angel band who sing around the throne, and ere she fell asleep in Jesus' arms she called little Clarence and gave her last, sweet good-bye to him, and when God called his pure spirit home he seemed to see his playmate beckoning him to join her. With his last feeble, fluttering breath he called "Myrtle! Myrtle!" and now they are walking the golden streets hand in hand, singing the sweet songs the angles sing on the far, far away shore. While you miss the sound of the dear, prattling voice and the patter of his footsteps, and gaze on his vacant chair with a keener sense of your loss, and in your hearts is a void which can never be filled, remember "God doth all things well," and that he gathers his choicest flowers first and earliest, and turn to Him for consolation in this great affliction. 'Tis only for a little while—while you are mourning his loss and the memory of those dark eyes that are watching and waiting for thee, at the beautiful, pearly gate.

We have laid thee to rest, child,
Low in thy dreamless bed,
Gentle and meek and mild,
With blessings on thy head;
Fresh roses in thy hand,
Buds on thy pillow laid,
Thou are gone from this blighting land
Where flowers so quickly fade.

Before thy heart could learn
In waywardness to stray;
Before thy feet could turn
The dark and downward way,
Ere sin could wound thy heart,
Or sorrow wake thy tear;
Thou are gone to thy home of rest,
In yon celestial sphere.

Suicide of a Citizen of Haines Township.

A very sad event agitated the residents of Haines township on Wednesday morning, in the self-destruction of one of their most prominent and respected neighbors, Mr. Thomas Hosterman. The man who thus ended his earthly existence with his own hands was about 70 years of age and the father of a large family. He was in excellent financial circumstances, but had lately become melancholy and exhibited much concern least some of his sons would loose the money which he had so carefully saved. His residence is about four miles from Woodward.

On Tuesday, the Fourth, he and a son were away from home part of the day and returned at night. The son, knowing his father's infirmity, desired to remain with him during the night, but Mr. H. objected, and it was thought better to leave him alone. The door of his room was locked, only his two daughters remaining in the house. All was quiet until 4 o'clock on Wednesday morning, when Mr. Hosterman expressed a wish to go out-doors and was permitted to do so. He returned in a short time and again, at 5 o'clock, went out. He was gone for some time when one of the daughters asked the other if their father had his knife with him when he left the house. She did not know, but they concluded to go and find him. To their horror, they discovered him lying in the barn with his throat cut from ear to ear, the instrument which he used for the purpose being an ordinary pocket knife. The dreadful event has awakened the sincerest sympathy in the community for the sorrowing relatives.

Cattle Disease.

Mr. J. Bilger, of Bellefonte, veterinary surgeon, thinks from the description given some time ago in these columns, that the disease among the cattle of Unionville and vicinity is pleuro-pneumonia. The symptoms of this disease are as follows: The afflicted animal strays away from the herd, and seems to desire solitude; stands with legs spread and nostrils expanded; short and laborious breathing; discharges a watery substance from nostrils; tight, hacking cough; great debility; urine frequently highly colored. Mr. Bilger states that all cattle suffering from this disease should be properly separated from the rest of the stock and put under a course of treatment.

—Professor H. S. Hitchcock is now owner of the Hollidaysburg seminary, having recently purchased the property. This will give Dr. Hitchcock entire control and management of the school, and enable him to successfully carry out what he has been endeavoring to do—make the Hollidaysburg seminary the most popular and best conducted institution of learning for young ladies in the state. —Altoona Tribune.

TESTED AND FOUND WORTHY.

In order to bring more fully before the notice of the people the value of a true and tried remedy, we give the following reliable testimonial from one of the many who have been cured, and whose reputation for veracity cannot be questioned.

WOODBURY, N. J., March 20, 1882.

SWEDISH BITTERS CO.:

GENTLEMEN.—I have suffered with dyspepsia and its horrible effects for many years. Have spent hundreds of dollars with physicians and in patent medicines, with no avail. I have been unable to eat meats of any kind, and could not retain water on my stomach, and was unable to sleep at night. I was induced to procure and try a bottle of your Swedish Bitters, and can conscientiously say that its use was followed by beneficial results. I can now sit down and enjoy a hearty meal of meats and vegetables of any kind and have gained sixteen pounds in three weeks and can cordially recommend it to others.

Yours respectfully,
AUGUSTUS PREHL,
Prop'r of Woodbury City Coach Line, Prehl's Livery and Accommodation Stables.

The above statement can be relied on.
WM. D. SCOTT,
Ex-Mayor of the City of Woodbury, N. J.

Give it a trial and you will see that the test of Swedish Bitters is the proof of its merit. Manufactured by SWEDISH BITTERS CO., Woodbury, N. J. Sold by all druggists at 75 cents per bottle.

I have just received the Largest, Finest, and in every way the Best Stock of ever offered in this town. I can show you ware heavier in the metal, finer in the finish, with more weight of silver to the square inch than you ever saw before. I am now buying nothing less than which is a grade heavier than any other. But one of the most important items relating to these goods is the price I can sell them at. Taking the exclusive sale of them in this county enables me to buy large quantities. Large quantities entitles me to the lowest prices and largest rebates. Giving you these advantages enables you to buy these fine goods, never higher, and sometimes lower than the most common goods which are entitled to be called silverware.

Silver Ware

QUADRUPLE PLATE,

Glenn Harris, Snow Shoe and Roundabout.

My last trip over the county took me to Glenn Harris and the Snow Shoe region, and as nothing has appeared in your columns from these places, of late, I thought perhaps a few notes might be of interest. Glenn Harris is located about 8 miles from Bellefonte in rather a pretty valley. It is a heavily wooded country, and farming is, therefore, crowded out. The village consists of about a dozen houses and several saw mills. It is without a post-office but has telephone communication with Bellefonte. P. B. Crider & Son's saw mills, as your readers know, are located here. Mr. Frank Bush is superintendent of the mills and Mr. Matthew Elder presides over the books of the firm. Frank Grice, with whom "roughing it" seems to agree, is storekeeper, and Ed. Shope keeps the boarding house where the mill operatives tie up. It is estimated that it will take fully ten years to work up the timber hereabouts.

Leaving Glenn Harris I pushed on to Snow Shoe, arriving at Uzzle's popular hotel about nightfall. Friend John is good natured and doing a good business as usual. He showed me the finest wheat field I have seen this season. It contains some 20 acres, averages five feet high and is growing finely. Mr. Uzzle is fond of animal pets, and his menagerie now contains a wild cat and a bear. The former is ferocious and chews up everything within his reach, but Bruin is more docile. John is a Beaver man and says the woods are full of 'em up that way. Called on Mr. Wm. Stewart, who is very much interested in birds. He has a fine collection, including some varieties that are costly and hard to procure, among others a macaw, of the parrot species. The latter is a handsome bird and well trained. It also has a wonderful memory and whenever a familiar face approaches it never fails to extend its "paw" for a shake.

The branch road now being built from the Snow Shoe road, near its terminus, to a place called Sugar Camp, is approaching completion. This road is to open up new mines, and Mr. J. C. McGahey, who has the contract, is pushing it forward, rapidly, having a large force of men at work, mostly Hungarians.

Mr. Fred Meese, of the P. R. R., has charge of the bridge building, and has completed the trestle over the creek near the charcoal furnaces. The road will be finished in a few weeks, and the new mines then to be opened will give employment to 500 men. To accommodate these miners a large number of dwellings are being built

The old Snow Shoe Co.'s mill, now run by P. B. Crider & Son, is crowded with business. Enough logs are piled up about the establishment to keep it booming at a lively rate until November. G. S. Ramsey, superintendent of Berwind, White & Co.'s mines, has been locating several new drifts along the road leading to Pine Grove. The land in this vicinity is sinking in a number of places and one of these days we may hear of some one being buried alive.

William Grauer & Co. are doing a fine business at their mercantile stand here. They recently built an extension to their store to accommodate their increasing trade. A host of clerks are employed and all kept busy. Ex-Conductor Nolan, of the Chincleclamouch, is happy and doing well. His hotel is filled up with boarders, which is not surprising as it is one of the best kept houses in the State. Had the pleasure of renewing acquaintance with Mr. Jas. Pope, formerly Superintendent of Berwind, White & Co.'s mines, but now filling the same position for Sommerville & Co. He is now engaged in opening up new fields near Carthouse for a new company, Sommerville, Pope & Cook, where the company has leased 4,000 acres.

The rumors of strikes around the mines here have been overdrawn. The few who struck have resumed work and no serious trouble is looked for. The principal trouble here seems to be in regard to the weighing of coal, the miners claiming that they are cheated out of hundreds of tons of coal by the weighman, they being paid by the ton. There may be some truth in this charge, and the difficulty should be adjusted by allowing the miners to choose their own weighman, which the company should allow them to do. The men are intelligent and peaceable, and if not imposed upon, will make good, law-abiding citizens.

Moshannon was the next place visited, but can give no very startling news from this point. I "registered" with Mr. Thos. Eckley, who has a large contract for stocking saw mills. He is engaged at present in stocking the mill of McClain & Co. Mr. William Lucas, an employe of this mill, met with a serious accident while I was here while repairing a belt, which was in motion. His lower limbs were caught in the belt and badly injured. Mr. D. F. Williams stopped the machinery in season to prevent further injury. I took dinner with Mr. T. Norton, a pleasant gentleman and one of the old settlers.

At Pine Glenn, which place I visited to close up a little business before starting for home, I availed myself of the opportunity to take a look at Boak's deer park. Mr. Boak has been adding to his flock for several years and now the enclosure contains ten or a dozen handsome, graceful animals. The park is well worth a visit. TRAVELER.

Robert W. Huston.

The following obituary notice has been sent us for publication. It is taken from the Kirksville (Mo.) Graphic. The deceased was a citizen of Unionville, this county, previous to his removal to Missouri.

One of Adair county's best citizens closed a life of extreme suffering June 21st, 1882. Mr. Huston was a native of Pennsylvania, born June 16th, 1831, in Adams county. At about 22 years of age he went, in company with his brother George, to Centre county and engaged in businesss, with good success. In 1856 after the loss of a much loved child, Mr. and Mrs. Huston united with the M. E. church. In 1866 they came to Missouri and located in La Plata, where the family remained about 5 years when they moved to a farm purchased in Wilson township, about three miles west of the village of Wilson. As a citizen Mr. Huston was honored by all who knew him. As a neighbor there are none more kind and true. His life was full of toil for the Heavenly Master; he held for years the position of class leader in the church of his choice and at different times, other positions of trust, so long as health and strength would permit. Four years ago he was taken with acute rheumatism and became an intense sufferer. There were days, and sometimes weeks in these four years when hope of recovery sprang up for a short period, but each succeeding relapse only fastened deeper the disease, until the power to help himself was gone; for eight months he remained in this condition, needing and having watchers every moment almost. Through these months and years of suffering there was no disposition to murmur. Submitting to the wisdom of God, he maintained a cheerful disposition and an unwavering faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The remains were followed from the house to the Union Cemetery by a large company of friends and neighbors who will long cherish the memory of Robt. W. Huston.

The Beef Boom.

From an exchange we glean the cheering information that there is a propect of an early decline in the price of beef. Over 100,000 head of Texas cattle are said to be coming over the plains of the Indian territory in one drove, bound for the Chicago market, and this large number coming at one time will certainly break down prices. A well known drover and cattle dealer avers that there is no scarcity of cattle, but the speculators have everything their own way. Thirty cars of live stock, en route for Philadelphia, passed over the Pennsylvania railroad the other day. If the present high prices are maintained a week longer it will certainly be due to some combination. Mutton and lamb are becoming plentier in the markets. Veal is somewhat scarcer, as at this season the farmers reserve the calves for the feeding of their harvest hands. With the decline of beef all other meats will come down. A year ago the western herds which furnished the meat supply were a third less in number and a third less in weight than in customary years. This spring the herds were a fifth above the average both in number and weight—quite a difference.

The National Guard Encampment.

Transportation to the annual encampment of the N. G. of Pa. at Lewistown will be furnished only to those who go to the encampment to remain.

Return vouchers may issue to cover leaves of absence or furloughs granted upon surgeon's certificate of disability, or by reason of serious illness or death in the officer's or soldier's family.

The revised edition of the military code of Pennsylvania is now ready for distribution. One copy will be issued to each commissioned officer, non-commissioned staff officer and sergeant. Those issued to company officers and non commissioned officers will be accounted for annually, on the property returns. Upon the discharge of an officer or soldier they will be turned over to the successor in the same grade. If the organization ceases to exist the books will be, with the other state property, returned to the adjutant general's department.

—The traces of damage done by high water during recent storms are still visible in many places. Up the Buffalo Run Valley many fields of corn lie prostrate on the ground and deep fissures are washed in the earth.

A WESTERN TRIP.

How the West Appeared to Two Centre County Citizens.

Mr. Editor—On the morning of the 13th of June we left Bellefonte for a brief visit to certain portions of what many Pennsylvanians are accustomed to style the far West, meaning that territory commonly known as the Upper Mississippi Valley. Seven o'clock on the evening of our first day's travel found us in Cleveland, Ohio, having passed through the cities of Altoona and Pittsburgh in our own state, at which places there was very little time for us to make any observations worthy of record. The city of Cleveland is said by those who have visited all the principal places of interest to be one of the most beautiful cities in the United States. Its wide avenues and shady groves—which last characteristic has given it the name of "Forest City," a term very appropriately applied—its thronged business places and manufactories render it attractive to the visitor and offered strong inducements for us to remain for several days. But our arrangements were such as obliged us to leave the following morning. Going by way of Toledo, at three o'clock in the afternoon of our second day's travel we were safe at the village of White Pigeon, Michigan, amidst a host of hospitable friends. The town of White Pigeon is situated on the southern border of what is known as White Pigeon prairie, a section of country stretching out either way for the distance of probably twelve miles and pronounced to be one of the most fertile and productive agricultural regions in the Union. The grain in that section of the state promises to yield a rich harvest, the wheat was never known to be in a better condition and the corn is far in advance of that in Northern Ohio or Central Pennsylvania. There is an interesting tradition connected with the naming of the village and prairie of White Pigeon. It is said that a large number of white settlers attracted thither by the beauty of the country and richness of soil made that their home and well cultivated farms and flourishing villages took the place of what was formerly the hunting grounds of the Indians. But the latter were not disposed to give up what they believed to be their rightful possession without a struggle and organized a formidable force to exterminate the whites, when a friendly Indian chief, White Pigeon, making a long and circuitous journey, appeared in the settlement and gave the alarm. By proper measures the the settlers were saved from what would doubtless have been a terrible massacre. In a few days the friendly Indian died from over exertion in his efforts to save the whites and was buried underneath the spreading branches of a great oak, near the village that now bears his name.

One thing that is the pride of Michigan and an object of interest to visitors is the admirable system of public instruction. In all the towns we visited the schools were opened ten months in a year, thus giving an ample opportunity to all who desire to receive a thorough, practical education. The course of instruction ranges from first principles to higher mathematics, Latin and German, and none but the best of teachers are employed. A diploma issued by one of these schools is considered a sufficient recommendation for its possessor to obtain any position of responsibility so far as necessary qualifications are concerned. It was at this place on our return trip, that we spent the Fourth of July and witnessed an old-time celebration of the aniversary of the Declaration of American Independence.

After remaining at White Pigeon a week we visited the great manufacturing town of South Bend, Indiana, where we received some ideas of the wonderful rapidity with which wagons, plows and all kinds of agricultural implements are manufactured. Many of the implements manufactured there being used by farmers in our own county.

From South Bend we went to Chicago, the metropolis of the West, whose public buildings and business establishments, it is said, surpass anything in magnificence that can be found between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Our next stopping place was at Freeport, Stephenson county, Illinois. In almost every section of that county are numbers of former well known Centre county citizens, who, in every instance so far as we were informed, are succeeding admirably. In Orangeville, Nora and Warren are a number of aged citizens who are considered among the pioneers of Northwestern Illinois, but whose boyhood days were spent among the mountains of Central Pennsylvania. They seemed glad to see us, and many were their anxious inquiries concerning the welfare of their former associates in the East. It would give us pleasure to name those aged citizens that we met as well as those who have moved there more recently, but the number is too great to be embraced in this short sketch. We spent a week among friends in and around Freeport, but as the time which we had designated for our vacation was passing away we started on our homeward journey. At Laporte, Indiana, there reside a number of persons who formerly lived at the village of Oak Hall, this county, at whose home we were entertained during our stay there. From Laporte we came back to Southern Michigan.

It was the privilege of the writer of this article to visit the lumber regions of the northern part of that State and observe the business operations in around the cities of Saginaw and Bay City. Here the lumber interests predominate and the lumber that is being shipped every day from the mills erected along Saginaw river and bay would seem to be sufficient to supply the demand of every State in the Union. Although immense quantities are annually shipped from different points along the bay, yet the supply seems almost inexhaustible. The writer also visited Lansing, the capitol of the State, where a new State building has recently been erected at the cost of $1,500,000. The new edifice presents a beautiful appearance and is built according to the most approved style of modern architecture. The city is nicely laid out, the streets are wide and extend north and south or east and west at right angles with one another.

Although not so large as many other cities of the West, yet Lansing is destined to become a great capitol of a great State before many years. We again started for home by way of Erie and on the morning of the seventh of July we arrived safely in Bellefonte, both delighted and profited with our visit, believing it would be of great benefit for every one to see the West and note the busy activity which characterizés all its citizens. VISITOR.

A Word about Water.

Monday afternoon was the second time within a brief period that the water was turned off the pipes and refused to flow for the benefit of the thousands of thirsty, perspiring creatures who depend upon this source for their sole supply. This must unavoidably happen sometimes, but what we complain of is that no notice that the water was to be turned off was given and people could make no preparation. While we write these indignant words our hands are soiled and our tongue is dry and parched, whereas if notice had been given we would have had a tubful on hand. It is terrible to have no water on an afternoon so oppressively warm as yesterday, and during the long dry, weather of last year such an event never occurred without due notice being given in the NEWS and an individual going from house to house to warn each consumer separately. That it is turned off all over town we know, because we are receiving telephone inquiries from people who want to know the reason for it and imagine that newspapers can give information on every subject. We dislike to make a political matter of such things, but it nevertheless remains true that during the time the Republicans had control of the council the water supply was abundant, and now that the Democrats are running things there is sometimes no water at all and whiskey is the only liquid obtainable to quench thirst. Do these Democrat officials intend to make us all drunk with the hope that we will vote the Democratic ticket all the time? If so, they are mistaken.

—Residents in the vicinity of the public school house are much disturbed these pleasant evenings by the noise made by a party of youths who congregate every evening on the pavement in front of the school and give vent to a series of screeches, howls, stampings, etc., which would do honor to a ball in the region of pandemonium. The fact that there are sick persons in that vicinity makes the noise all the more disagreeable. On several occasions policemen have been requested to be present to stop the noise, but their efforts do not seem to accomplish the desired result. We would be exceedingly sorry to hear of the arrest of these youths, but extreme measures must be resorted to if the practice does not cease immediately.

—One of the engines on the Snow Shoe road ran off the track on Friday afternoon at a point about two and a half miles this side of Snow Shoe station. After leaving the track it fell over on its side. No one was injured by the accident. Two wreck trains left this place to proceed to the scene of the accident, and before Saturday night all temporary interruption to travel was overcome.
